A WRITING GUIDE FOR COUNSELORS AND TEACHERS

Colleges that invite letters of recommendation are looking for stories that will help them better evaluate a student for academic potential and fit within their community. Counselors and teachers are powerful advocates in this effort, each poised to share unique and valuable insights. The context they offer helps clarify, support, and build upon information provided by the student.

HOW COUNSELOR LETTERS ADD VALUE
Counselors provide a view of an applicant within the context of an entire graduating class and school community, addressing a student’s academic achievements, extracurricular accomplishments, and personal interests and goals, without repeating what is in the application.

Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community

COUNSELOR

Examples from the classroom, such as leadership during class discussions and with group projects and assignments

TEACHER

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Ability and willingness to enhance the learning of their peers

Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community

Context for and rationale behind specific awards and honors

Leadership

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Willingness to seek help when needed

Academic Achievement

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Topics where the student excelled or exhibited particular interest

While both counselor and teacher recommendations capture a student’s personality and strengths, there are distinct differences between the two perspectives. Below are examples of some key student characteristics admissions committees are trying to assess and how each writer might address them.

HOW TEACHER LETTERS ADD VALUE
Teachers write from the vantage point of the classroom, using their firsthand knowledge of a student’s intellectual curiosity, creative thought, quality of writing, class behavior, and work habits to depict the student as a scholar.

Examples from the classroom, such as leadership during class discussions and with group projects and assignments

Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community

Leadership

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community

Context for and rationale behind specific awards and honors

Academic Achievement

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Willingness to seek help when needed

While both counselor and teacher recommendations capture a student’s personality and strengths, there are distinct differences between the two perspectives. Below are examples of some key student characteristics admissions committees are trying to assess and how each writer might address them.

Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community

Context for and rationale behind specific awards and honors

Leadership

An explanation of the student’s transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections or performance

Willingness to seek help when needed

Academic Achievement
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>COUNSELOR</th>
<th>TEACHER</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Growth measured over the course of the high school career, including academic progress and social-emotional development and maturation</td>
<td>Growth over the course of the class, or since the last time the teacher taught the student, including the willingness to be challenged and learning from the experience</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Level of involvement in school, family, and community</td>
<td>Class participation, contributions to discussions, desire to engage with the learning process beyond what’s expected of the class</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Particular experiences that have shaped the student</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Response to challenges impacting overall academic performance</td>
<td>Reaction to academic setbacks such as failing a test or not understanding a concept</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hardships and obstacles faced or overcome, such as school transfers, family situations, illness, or personal struggles</td>
<td>Response to personal challenges that may have affected attendance in class or the ability to be present and learn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Personal interactions with the student and observations of how the student interacts with other students and faculty</td>
<td>Personal interactions with the student and observations of how the student engages with peers in class discussions and group projects</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anecdotes that highlight empathy or concern for others</td>
<td>Willingness to assist other students</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>